E.E.C. Warned On Subsidies

BRUSSELS, May 25 (AP) — Bill Brock, the United States trade representative, warned the European Economic Community today that if its members continued to subsidize exports of manufactured goods and farm products, the Reagan Administration might retaliate.

"I would not rule out any option," Mr. Brock told a news conference after a four-day visit to Brussels and meetings with officials of the Common Market commission.

Mr. Brock said he told his European counterparts that the United States opposed the policy of governments subsidizing exports, which the Reagan Administration feels violates principles of free trade by giving companies in subsidizing countries an unfair advantage.

The Reagan Administration already has begun limiting contributions to the United States's Export-Import Bank, which aids exports. Mr. Brock signaled the Administration's determination to press the same philosophy on the E.E.C.
